

Special Issue on
The 6th International Network of Environmental Forensics
(INEF) conference

International Network of Environmental Forensics (INEF) is delighted to be publishing the proceedings of the 6th INEF conference as a special issue in the Journal of Environmental Protection. In the summer of 2016 we met, as a community of environmental forensic practitioners, in Orebro, Sweden. Environmental forensics is a multidisciplinary subject and this was reflected in presentations from a wide range of experts including biologists, chemists, hydrologists, lawyers, statisticians and many more. We had representation from a wide variety of sectors including the legal, industry, academia and research. The conference provided a great platform to disseminate research and also learn some valuable lessons from so many experts in their respective fields.