Special Issue on Public Service and Public Administration

Call for Papers

Public Service and Public Administration encompass the study and practice of governance, policies, and administrative processes aimed at efficiently delivering services to the public. This field examines the role of government and its interactions with the private sector and non-profit organizations, focusing on how policies are formulated, implemented, and evaluated. Scholars and practitioners alike explore issues of leadership, ethics, public accountability, and the impact of public policies on society, aiming to enhance the effectiveness and responsiveness of public institutions to better serve community needs.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Public Service and Public Administration. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Public policy analysis
- Public administration theory
- Public budgeting and financial management
- Organizational theory and efficiency
- Public organization behavior
- Health services administration
- Human resources management in the public sector
- Public service and civic engagement
- Politics of public service
- Intergovernmental relations
