

Special Issue on Society, Health, and Well-being

Call for Papers

Society, Health, and Well-being is an interdisciplinary field of study that focuses on the relationships between social factors, health outcomes, and overall well-being. It examines the social determinants of health, such as income, education, employment, housing, and access to healthcare, and how they interact to influence individuals' health and well-being across the lifespan. This field draws upon insights from sociology, psychology, economics, epidemiology, public health, and other disciplines to understand the complex interplay between society and health. It also considers social policies, interventions, and programs aimed at improving population health. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Society, Health, and Well-being.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Society, Health, and Well-being. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- COVID-19 and social impacts
- Social epidemiology
- Health services
- Social capital and health
- Cancer and quality of life
- Medical economics
- Medical anthropology
- Medical psychology and social science
- Medical and social ethics
- Patient and population health
- Biomedical ethics
- Medical sociology
- Health psychology
- Social epidemiology
- Health economics
- Health policy and management
- Public health
- Environmental health
- Global health
- Community health

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Society, Health, and Well-being” should be selected during your submission.

Special Issue Timetable:

| | |
|---------------------|--------------------|
| Submission Deadline | October 10th, 2024 |
| Publication Date | December 2024 |

Guest Editor:

For further questions or inquiries, please contact Editorial Assistant at jss@scirp.org.