

Special Issue on Public Economics

Call for Papers

Public economics is the study of government policy through the lens of economic efficiency and equity. At its most basic level, public economics provides a framework for thinking about whether or not the government should participate in the economy and to what extent its role should be.

The issue on “Public Economics” will be focusing on the role of government in the economy. The topics to be covered by this special issue include, but are not limited to:

- Taxation
- Social security
- Health care
- Education
- Public goods
- Externalities
- Environmental policies
- Regulation
- Electoral competition
- Lobbying

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Public Economics.

Authors should read over the journal’s Author’s Guidelines carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue —Public Economics” should be chosen during your submission.

According to the following timetable:

Manuscript Due	July 24th, 2013
Publication Date	September 2013
