

Special Issue on Economics and Sustainable Development

Call for Papers

Economics and Sustainable Development focuses on studying the science of sustainable production and consumption by developing a comprehensive, integrated approach to sustainability and resilience assessment. Sustainable development is a process for meeting development goals while sustaining the ability of natural systems to continue to provide the natural resources and ecosystem services upon which the economy and society depends. The goal of this special issue is to achieve growing economy, sound environment and responsible society.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Economics and Sustainable Development. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Economic sustainability
- Low carbon economy
- Green economy
- Ecological economics
- Environmental economics
- Sustainable energy
- Sustainability measurement
- Resource recycling

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Economics and Sustainable Development” should be selected during your submission.
