

Special Issue on Corporate Finance and Governance

Call for Papers

"Corporate Finance and Governance" is an academic discipline that explores the financial management and decision-making processes within corporations, along with the mechanisms of governing these organizations. It encompasses the study of how corporations raise and allocate capital, make investment decisions, assess financial risks, and distribute profits to shareholders. Additionally, it examines the frameworks and structures that ensure effective oversight and accountability in corporate decision-making, including the roles of boards of directors, executive management, and regulatory bodies. This field provides valuable insights into the financial dynamics and governance practices that shape the behavior and performance of corporations in both national and international contexts.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Corporate Finance and Governance. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Capital structure decision making
- Investment analysis and portfolio management
- Dividend policy
- Corporate governance
- Corporate restructuring
- Managerial and decision economics
- Optimization of financial management
- Board dynamics and strategy
- Stakeholder theory
- Risk management
- International corporate finance
- Mergers and acquisitions
- Financial statement analysis
