

Special Issue on Language, Speech and Communication

Call for Papers

Language is a complex symbolic system composed of words, which includes phonetic system, lexical system and grammatical system. Language is the most important tool of human communication and the main way of expression for people to communicate. People use language to preserve and transmit the achievements of human civilization. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Language, Speech and Communication.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Language, Speech and Communication. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Basics of oral communication and dialogue
- Semantics and pragmatics of speech communication
- Models and tools for language learning
- Multimodal human computer interface
- Fundamentals, speech perception theory, and technology
- Body-language-communication
- Language, communication, happiness
- Thought, language, communication

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Language, Speech and Communication” should be selected during your submission.

Special Issue Timetable:

Submission Deadline	October 31st, 2020
Publication Date	December 2020

Guest Editor:

For further questions or inquiries, please contact Editorial Assistant at ojml@scirp.org.