Special Issue on Nursing Assessment Management

Call for Papers

With healthcare reform legislation and a diverse set of challenges presenting themselves each day, nursing management has never been more complicated. Nursing leaders need resources and tools to support the constantly shifting demands in healthcare management and, ultimately, patient care. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in this area of nursing assessment and management.

In this special issue, we invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles that explore nursing assessment and management. In this special issue, potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- The systematic and continuous collection of data
- Sorting, analyzing, and organizing data
- Indications for assessment
- Approach to assessment in children
- Assessment and management of pain
- Types of assessments
- Structure for assessments
- Nursing management: principles and practice
- Assessment of acute and critical patients
- Nursing quality analysis tool

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.
Please kindly specify the "Special Issue" under your manuscript title. The research field "Special Issue – *Nursing Assessment and Management" should be selected during your submission.
