

Special Issue on Nursing and Health

Call for Papers

Health-promoting behaviors are important in preventing noncommunicable, lifestyle-related diseases. In the past decade, researchers have begun to focus on nurses' participation in health-promoting activities. The remainder of this article will focus on the research related to nurses and health-promoting behaviors. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in this area of nursing and health.

In this special issue, we invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles that explore nursing and health. In this special issue, potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Nurse patient interaction
- Occupational therapy, physiotherapy
- Learning disability nursing
- Pediatric nursing
- Geriatric nursing
- Nursing of people in acute care and long term care institutional settings
- Home health nursing Community and Home care
- Critical and emergency care
- Advanced nursing practices
- Maternity and women's health
- Social Interactions
- Health habits self-management & personal development

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue – Nursing and Health” should be selected during your submission.

Special Issue timetable:

Submission Deadline	November 5th, 2024
Publication Date	January 2025

Guest Editor:

For further questions or inquiries
Please contact Editorial Assistant at ojn@scirp.org