

Special Issue on Labor and Delivery

Call for Papers

Labor and Delivery is a specialized field within obstetrics focusing on the physiological, medical, and surgical aspects of childbirth. It covers a wide range of topics from the onset of labor, through the delivery of the baby and the placenta, to immediate postpartum care. This field emphasizes the management of normal labor, identification and treatment of complications, pain relief, and the roles of healthcare professionals in ensuring a safe delivery for both mother and child. Advances in this field continually improve outcomes and experiences for birthing individuals.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Labor and Delivery. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Normal labor and delivery
- High-risk obstetrics
- Premature labor and birth
- Prenatal care
- Obstetric ultrasound
- Maternal-fetal medicine
- Perinatal epidemiology
- Labor induction and augmentation
- Cesarean delivery
- Fetal monitoring
- Pain management in labor
- Obstetric complications
- Childbirth and maternal health
- Postpartum care

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Labor and Delivery” should be chosen during your submission.
