

Special Issue on
Psychological Assessment and Psychometrics
Call for Papers

Psychological Assessment and Psychometrics is an academic field focused on measuring and evaluating mental functions, behaviors, and attributes using psychological tests and instruments. It encompasses the development, validation, and application of these assessments to individual and group evaluations. Psychometrics involves statistical techniques to ensure the reliability and validity of test scores, facilitating diagnosis, educational placement, and understanding of individual differences in abilities, personality, and mental health. This field is essential in clinical, educational, organizational, and research settings to support informed decision-making and interventions.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Psychological Assessment and Psychometrics. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Assessment theory and practice
